

Whatever your saying it just needs to make sense

[Framing as customer service]

Aged lead - Hey (name) its just (mitch) im not sure if youre going to remember this. I am just trying to get our records updated, hopefully you can help me real quick.....Im not sure why this didnt get updated.....It looks like you put in some info time frame(3 weeks ago, 3months ago, etc) about possibly looking at life insurance, did you end up finding something or what ended up happening?

[Frame]

Great, in case you missed it, my name is Mitch, the process here is pretty simple and easy, I'm just a field underwriter, So basically my job is to just go over your situation, see what all you would be eligible for and then were able to actually shop the rates across all the top carriers in the state for you, it's pretty quick and easy, okay?

Go ahead and grab a pen and paper for me....Let me know when you're ready...

Go ahead and write down my name, M-I-T-C-H-E-L-L V-A-N-D-U-S-E-N and just in case we get disconnected this is my call back number 0-0-0-0-0-0-0-0. Do you have that? Go ahead and read it back to me just to be sure?

And do you currently have anything in place or are we starting from scratch on this?

If have something	If don't have something
Why they feel thats not enough Or if they were looking to add on more Or if they were looking to replace that	Continue moving forward

You know how this stuff works... There are a lot of options.... Some dont ask any medical questions, for most people though...we want to look at the ones that do ask medical questions because they're usually more affordable. So lets start there.....Any mild or major health concerns of any kind?

If health concerns	If no health concerns
Start asking about it as you normally would.	Okay perfect, now im not supposed to ask this my wife does have me trained....you know how insurance is though, they're going to have me ask, height and weight for you. How tall are you and ballpark how much do you weigh? Any tobacco or nicotine use?

Kind of an odd question here, I want to double check and see if there may be any discounts available for you here for payment methods.....do you have a valid US bank account or do you do everything with a direct express card?

And I almost forgot to ask, who are we looking to protect, who would be the beneficiary?

In Depth Health Questions (Skip if healthy, no medications)

Be conversational here, use humor, be human, talk to them. Through this section we want them to smile, laugh, relax, and talk to a new friend. If they said they are healthy and no prescriptions you will skip these.

TRANSITION TO THE WHY

It'll take awhile here for it to all load here,, I was curious....did something happen recently or what had you looking for....life insurance in the first place??

So is it more so that the beneficiary could come up with that money on their own and cover things, you just don't want them to.... Or is it more so that if beneficiary had to come up with that money that it would put them in a bad spot financially?

(Ahhhhh I see/Yeah that makes sense), so your just not feeling that great about that potentially happening...(say this like its a question)

OR

How would you feel about them having to do that?

OR

Yeah I get what you mean, Ive seen that happen...Share a personal story (keep it short, get to the point)

Identity Frame (Tailor this to the person)

That's good to hear. They're lucky to have someone like you that is so selfless, and...I guess...reasonable enough to know that while most of us don't really want to think about it...the bottom line is that were all going to die at some point. Of course, hopefully it doesnt happen for awhile but its kinda o flike that old saying goes...Prepare for the worst and....hope for the best....

Take a breath, give them room to respond

Its so smart...ITS CRAZY THOUGH! Ya know, I talk to a lot of people and some people...some people...I mean everyone loves their family.....some just think of it like I paid for everything when you were young, its your turn to take care of me..ya....ya know what i mean? Identity Frame/Probing Statement

(If needed) Can I ask....How come this... is so important to you?

Clarify/Probe

Have you always been that way, or i guess where does that way of thinking come from? (Root cause of thought process/identity)

It seems like this has been on your mind for awhile...how long has this been in the back of your head? (if they told you a story earlier; so has this been on your mind since_____ or how long has this been in the back of your head?) (duration)

Why Now

That makes sense, I can tell this is really important to you....whats held you back from getting insurance in the past? (Root Cause of Current Situation)

Was it just like a stack of things or thoughts that added up over the last duration or was there something that happened recently that got you thinking about this.....now? (trigger, Urgency)

Clarify/Probe

How much easier do you feel things would be for <BENEFICIARY NAME>, them getting a check to cover everything....not having to worry about money....while they were grieving (Desired Destination)

Recap- Empathy Summary - Summarize all the emotion -

Yeah that makes sense, it sounds like overall you're the kind of mom/dad/grandma/etc that is smart enough to know how important this is....And really as you've looked its just _____thats held you back but you know you should.....probably.....do something because if something happened now it doesnt sound like things would be.....very.....easy..... (see if they answer cost of inaction here be quiet) and really you just need to find something that (INSERT WHAT THEY WANT)

Cost of inaction - if needed, they will sometimes answer this after the above summary

How do you think that would effect <beneficiary>....having to take on the weight of planning and PAYING for everything while trying to grieve....

OR

Yeah based on what we've talked about here, sound like things...might be a little bit hard on _____ financially if something happened to you...now.....

Well lets go over all hte best options and see what would work best so they dont have to do that!

PRESENTATION

Now there are a lot of options....I just want to make sure we choose the right one for you. How familiar are you with the different life insurance types out there?

Yeah no worries, ya know i dont know if you've ever felt this way before..what most people tell us though is that they've been looking and theres so much out there its just kind of confusing and overwhelming.....to understand the differences and make sure youre getting something good while not over paying....

My goal here is to make sure you dont feel that way anymore. I want to explain things so you can actually understand and make an informed decision so I'm going to go over some of this stuff, and you just stop me if you have any questions at all okay?

On one end the market will be term insurance, how familiar are you with term?

Term is nice because its typically more coverage ya know its less money, basically with term the carriers agree to cover you for a set amount of time, typically 10, 15, 20 years.

The downside, the risk is if you outlive the term its kind of like congratulations youre alive however you no longer have insurance and youre not getting any money back.

And statistically speaking term only pays out 1-2 percent of the time.

Not because the carriers are out there fighting the claims or anything but because theyre good at what they do so if you get approved for term, they're basically saying you were 99% sure you're going to outlive the term....of course we' take your money. Who wouldn't? So most people don't go that route because they feel like they're just putting money down the drain. Are you with me on that?

On the other end of the market....is whole life, how familiar are you with whole life?

The nice thing about whole life is that it will last your whole life, it never ends. Now there's 2 ways to set up a whole life policy.

You can make it cheap in the beginning however you know how things are, you get what you pay for right?

Insurance is no different, all the insurance carriers use the same risk guidelines so if one policy is significantly cheaper than another, its usually because.....There's a change somewhere.... If set up that way what ends up happening is the insurance company then has control over you to increase the price each year. So most people don't go this route because they dont like the insurance company having that power over them.....ya know?

What most people do who come to us....is they gte a policy that will just be consistent, the rates wont go up, the benefit doesn't go down. Everything is just consistent, they have control.

- If they have unrealistic expectations include this here*

Even if they have to get a little less, they like knowing things are locked in and there not going to be forced to pay the insurance companies rate hikes every year.

Does that makes sense?

What are your thoughts?

One thing we didnt talk about was the process to file the death claim when you pass away.....Did you know that legally speaking insurance companies actually have 6 months to pay that out?

So with our clients we just focus on the carriers that have a history of paying out within a week or two weeks. That way you know that <Beneficiary> is actually going to get the money to be able to pay for your funeral, she makes the mortgage payment on time, everything is paid, she doesn't have to stress about when there even gonna get the money.

Is that something that would be important to you?

How come?

(Optional) These policies build cash value, how familiar are you with cash value?

What it does is as you put money into the policy, a portion of that is still your money that slowly gains interest, it's nothing that's going to make you rich, basically what that means to you is that if money gets tight in the future and you can't make a payment or two you aren't going to lose this protection that you have there for _____. Does that make sense?

(yeah that's one of the biggest reasons our clients want this policy that are your age because when they have an emergency and they're on a limited income, they don't have to make that payment, they already have cash value in the policy as backup, you with me?)

Pricing

Now I'll have you write down a few options here, write down (high option, (middle option) and (low option)...

Based in what you've told me, this is probably more than what you need, but if you wanted to leave some extra....like do any of your kids or family have any debt?

This would be plenty to cover whatever they need covered - the services, the casket, the transportation, the headstone, and really just take that burden off of your kids so they don't have the burden and would also help them pay off that debt so that they don't have to worry about how they're going to pay that off.

So the (high option) that would be $$ per month if we can get you qualified.

Now (middle option), this is where most of our clients in your situation land unless they want to leave more for their kids to help pay off debt. Like we talked about before (in solution awareness) It's enough to cover all the funeral and final expenses and still leaves enough to cover one thing people sometimes forget about which is inflation. You know like how everything keeps going up up and up over the last few years?

So, it's just a safe option to make that <beneficiary> is protected and isn't going to have to get a loan and pay all that interest because inflation keeps going up like it always has or do a go fund me...

(middle option) would only be $$ per month if you are eligible that...which I think you should be, but we'll have to check.

Now the (low option), here we don't have quite as much protection from the cost of living continuing to go up, it is still enough to cover all those expenses right now we talked about though so that if you know your family is protected.

(low option) would only be $$ per month if we can get you qualified for that.

Am I in the ballpark here, is there anything that that you would want to see?

Commitment Questions

Which one of those would you lean towards?

How come that one just so i understand?

{if needed} so, does this feel like its what youre looking for?

That makes sense...Well, the first step is to make sure we could even get you qualified. Let me get that pulled up here, Ive got your (confirm something = street address/spelling of first name) as ___ is that correct?

Is there a middle initial you want here on the form?
